DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1,2 and 5-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Koyama et al (2004/0040315) in view of Dadd (6,127,750). Koyama et al disclose applicants' basic inventive concept, a cryocooler with a means for compressing a gas (10) with a high pressure outlet pipe and a low pressure suction pipe (not numbered) and passing the gas through a frequency modulation valve (14) and passing the pulsing gas through a regenerator (12b) and a buffer (18,19), substantially as claimed with the exception of using an oil free compressor to produce gas compression pulses at a frequency of at least 25 hertz. Dadd shows this feature to be old in the compressor art. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of applicants' invention from the teaching of Dadd to modify the cryocooler of Koyama et al by using an oil-free linear compressor operating over 25 Hz (Dadd will operate at 60 Hz if a standard outlet is used) to reduce the possibility of refrigerant contamination. In regard to claim 5, the frequency of the pulsing gas is seen as a matter of obvious design choice for an ordinary practitioner in the art, depending on the gas used and the desired temperature.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 3,4,10 and 11 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Hohne, Zhu et al and Wang show pulse tube cooling systems with rotary valves to control the timing of pulses in the tube. Kawano et al, Heron and Yaron show rotary valves to control the frequency of cryocoolers.
